Projects

I have done many responsive designs using the skills I learned, the most important of which is the React project in which I used Api and a React project that I worked on with a full team of developers using the best technologies I want this text in English You can see them on my GitHub account

Future aspirations

Finally, as for my future aspirations in the software development field, I look forward to working for prestigious international software companies, where I will be able to develop my skills and expertise in programming, and work on new and exciting technology projects. My goal is to improve my professional and personal level, learn new techniques, and use advanced tools to achieve my desired objectives, and contribute to turning ideas into reality through programming
